And draw within the compass of suspect
Th' unviolated honour of your wife. Shakespeare.
He, with singular constancy, preserved his duty and fidelity to his majesty unviolated. Clarendon.
This strength diffus'd
No less through all my sinews, joints, and bones,
Than thine, while I preserv'd these locks unhorn,
The pledge of my unviolated vow. Milton.
UNVIRTUOUS. adj. Wanting virtue.
If they can find in their hearts that the poor, unvirtuous, fat knight shall be any further afflicted, we two will be the ministers. Shakespeare. Merry Wives of Windsor.
UNVISITED. adj. Not resorted to.
In some wild zone
Dwell, not unvisited of heav'n's fair light, Secure. Milton's Par. Lost, b. ii.
The playhouse and the park unvisited must lie. Dryden.
UNIFORM. adj. Wanting uniformity.
Such an uniform piety is in many so exactly apportioned to Satan's interest, that he has no cause to with the change of his tenure. Decay of Piety.
UNVOYAGEABLE. adj. Not to be passed over or voyaged.
Not this unvoyageable gulph obscure,
Detain from following thy illustrious track. Digby.
UNWAGED. adj. Not incited; not perfid.
The time was once, when thou unwar'd would'st vow,
That never words were music to thine ear,
Unless I spake. Shakespeare. Comedy of Errors.
UNWED. adj.
1. Not put to use; unemployed.
She, whose husband about that time died, forgetting the absent Plangus, or, at least, not hoping of him to attain to aspiring a purpose, left no art untried, which might keep the line from breaking, whereas the fish was already taken. Sidney.
Sure he that made us with such large discourse,
Looking before and after, gave us not
That capability and godlike reason,
To rust in us unus'd. Shakespeare's Hamlet.
2. Not accustomed.
He, untried to such entertainment, did shortly and plainly answer what he was. Sidney, b. ii.
One, whose eyes,
Albeit untried to the melting mood,
Dropt tears as fast as the Arabian trees
Their medicinal gum. Shakespeare. Othello.
What art thou?
Not from above: no, thy wan looks betray Diminish'd light, and eyes unus'd to day. Dryden.
UNUSEFUL. adj. Useless; serving no purpose.
I was persuaded, by experience, that it might not be un-useful in the capacities it was intended for. Glanville.
Birds flutter with their wings, when there is but a little down upon them; and they are as yet utterly unuseful for flying. Admiral's Antidote against Atheism.
As when the building gains a furer flay,
We take th' unuseful scaffolding away. Dryden.
Pleas'd to find his age
Declining, not unuseful to his lord. Philips.
UNUSUAL. adj. Not common; not frequent; rare.
With this unusual and strange course they went on, till God, in whole heav'nly worldly judgments I nothing doubt but that there may be hidden mercy, gave them over to their own inventions. Hooker.
You gain your point, if your industrious art
Can make unusual words easy and plain. Resenmon.
A sprightly red vermilion all her face;
And her eyes languish with unusual grace.
That peculiar turn, that the words should appear new, yet not unusual, but very proper to his auditors. Relton.
The river flows redundant, and attacks
The ling'ring remnant with unusual tide. Philips.
UNUSUALNESS. n. f. Uncommonness; infrequency.
It is the unusualness of the time, not the appearance, that surprizes Alcibiades. Bryant.
UNUTTERABLE. adj. Ineffable; inexpressible.
Sighs now breath'd
Unutterable; which the spirit of pray'r
Inspir'd, and waiv'd for heav'n with speedier flight
Than lowly oratory. Milton's Par. Lost, b. xi.
It wounds my soul
To think of your unutterable sorrows,
When you shall find Hippolytus was guiltless. Smith.
UNVULNERABLE. adj. Exempt from wound; not vulnerable.
The god of soldiers inform Thy thoughts with nobleness, that thou may'st prove
To shame unvulnerable, and stick i' th' wars
Like a great sea mark, standing every flaw. Shakespeare.

U N W

He came to Tauris, a great and rich city, but unwall'd, and of no strength. Kneller's Hist. of the Turk.
UNWARES. adv. Unexpectedly; before any caution, or expectation.
She, by her wicked arts,
Too false and strong for earthly skill or might,
Unwares me wrought unto her wicked will. Fairy Queen.
His loving mother came upon a day
Unto the woods, to see her little son,
And chanc'd unwares to meet him in the way,
After his sports and cruel pastime done. Fairfax, b. i.
Still we fail, while prosperous blows the winds,
Till on some secret rock unwares we light. Fairfax.
UNWARYLY. adv. Without caution; carelessly.
The best part of my powers
Were in the washes all unwarily
Devour'd by the unexpected flood. Shakespeare.
If I had not unwarily engaged myself for the present publishing it, I should have kept it till I had look'd over it. Digby.
By such principles, they renounce their legal claim to liberty and property, and unwarily submit to what they really abhor. Freeholder, N° 10.
UNWARISS. n. f. [from unwary.] Want of caution; carelessness.
The same temper which inclines us to a desire of fame, naturally betrays us into such slips and unwarinesses, as are not incident to men of a contrary disposition. Spectator, N° 256.
UNWARILY. adj. Not fit for war; not used to war; not military.
He safely might old troops to battle lead,
Against th' unwarlike Persian, and the Mede;
Whole hasty flight did from a bloodless field,
More spoils than honour to the victor yield. Waller.
Avert unwarlike Indians from his Rome,
Triumph abroad, secure our peace at home. Dryden.
UNWARMED. adj. Not cautioned; not made wary.
Unexperienced young men, if unwarmed, take one thing for another, and judge by the outside. Locke.
May hypocrites,
That slyly speak one thing, another think,
Drink on unwarmed, till by enchanting cups
Infatuate, they their wily thoughts disclose. Philips.
UNWARRANTABLE. adj. Not defensible; not to be justified;
not allowed.
At very distant removes an extemporary intercourse is feasible, and may be compassed without unwarrantable correspondence with the people of the air. Glanville.
He who does an unwarrantable action through a false information, which he ought not to have believed, cannot in reason make the guilt of one sin the excuse of another. South.
UNWARRANTABLY. adv. Not justifiably; not defensibly.
A true and humble sense of your own unworthiness, will not suffer you to rise up to that confidence, which some men unwarrantably pretend to, nay, unwarrantably require of others. Wake's Preparation for Death.
UNWARRANTED. adj. Not ascertained; uncertain.
The subjects of this kingdom believe it is not legal for them to be enforced to go beyond the seas, without their own consent, upon hope of an unwarranted conquest; but to resist an invading enemy, the subject must be commanded out of the counties where they inhabit. Bacon.
UNWARY. adj.
1. Wanting caution; imprudent; hasty; precipitate.
Nor think me so unwary,
To bring my feet again into the snare
Where once I have been caught. Milton's Agonistes.
So spake the false archangel, and infus'd
Bad influence into th' unwary breast. Milton.
So talk'd the spirited fly snake; and Eve,
Yet more amaz'd, unwary thus reply'd. Milton.
Turning short, he struck with all his might Full on the helmet of th' unwary knight. Dryden.
Deep was the wound
Propositions about religion are insinuated into the unwary, as well as unbiassed understandings of children, and riveted there by long custom. Locke.
2. Unexpected. Obsolete.
All in the open hall amaz'd stood,
At suddenness of that unwary fight,
And wonder'd at his breathless hasty mood. Fairy Queen.
UNWASHED. adj. Not washed; not cleansed by washing.
Another lean unwash'd artificer
Cuts off his tale, and talks of Arthur's death. Shakespeare.
To eat with unwash'd hands defileth not a man. Matthew, xv.

U N W

He accepts of no unclean, no unwashed sacrifice; and if repentance utter not in, prayer will never find admittance. Dappa.
When the fleece is thorn, if sweat remains Unwash'd, it soaks into their empty veins. Dryden.
UNWASTED. adj. Not consumed; not diminished.
Why have those rocks so long unwasted stood,
Since, lavish of their stock, they through the flood
Have, ages past, their melting crystal spread,
And with their spoils the liquid regions fed? Blackmore.
UNWASTING. adj. Not growing less; not decaying.
Purest love's unwasting treasure;
Constant faith, fair hope, long leisure;
Sacred Hymen! these are thine. Pope.
UNWAYED. adj. Not used to travel; not seasoned in the road.
Beasts that have been rid off their legs, are as much for a man's use, as colts that are unwayed, and will not go at all. Suckl.
UNWEAKENED. adj. Not weakened.
By reason of the exhalation of some air out of the glass, the elical power of the remaining air was very much debilitated, in comparison of the unweakened pressure of the external air. Boyle.
UNWEAPONED. adj. Not furnished with offensive arms.
As the beards are armed with fierce teeth, paws, horns,
and other bodily instruments of much advantage against un-weaponed men; so hath reason taught man to strengthen his hand with such offensive arms, as no creature else can well avoid. Raleigh.
UNWEARABLE. adj. Not to be tired.
Desire to resemble him in goodness, maketh them un-wearable. Hooker, b. i.

First loves to do, then loves the good he does. Denham.
A winged virtue through th' ethereal sky,
From orb to orb, unwearied dost thou fly. Tickell.
An unwearied devotion in the service of God, recommended the gospel to the world.
The righteous shall certainly be saved, but then the christian character of a righteous man implies a constant, unwearied performance in many painful instances of duty. Rogers.
To UNWEARY, v. a. To refresh after weariness.
It unwaries, and refreshes more than any thing, after too great labour. Temple.
UNWED. adj. Unmarried.
This servitude makes you to keep unwed. Shakespeare.
UNWEDGABLE. adj. Not to be cloven.
Merciful heav'n!
Thou rather with thy sharp and sulph'rous bolt
Split'st the unwedgable and gnarled oak,
Than the soft myrtle. Shakespeare. Measure for Measure.
UNWEEDED. adj. Not cleared from weeds.
Fie! 'tis an unweeded garden,
That grows to seed; things rank, and gross in nature,
Possess it merely. Shakespeare's Hamlet.
UNWEPT. adj. Not lamented. Now unweep.
He must not float upon his watery bier
Unwept, and welter to the parching wind,
Without the meed of some melodious tear. Milton.
UNWEETING. adj. Ignorant; unknowing.
Her seeming dead he found with feigned fear,
As all unweaving of that well she knew;
And pained himself with busy care to rear
Her out of careless swoon. Fairy Queen, b. i.
But contrary, unweaving he fulfilled
The purpos'd counsel, pre-ordain'd and fix'd
Of the most high. Paradise Regain'd.
UNWEIGHED. adj.
1. Not examined by the balance.
Solomon left all the vessels unweighed, because they were exceeding many. 1 Kings, vii.

What unweighed behaviour hath this Flemish drunkard pickt out of my conversation, that he dares in this manner essay me? why he hath not been thrice in my company. Shakespeare.
Daughter, what words have pass'd thy lips unweigh'd,
Deem not unjustly by my doom oppress'd,
Of human race the wisest, and the best. Pope's Ode, &c.
UNWEIGHING. adj. Inconsiderate; thoughtless.
Wife! why, no question but he was—a very superficial, ignorant, unweighing fellow. Shakespeare.
UNWELCOME. adj. Not pleasing; not grateful; not well received.

U N W

Such welcome and unwelcome things at once,
'Tis hard to reconcile. Shakespeare. Macbeth.
Soon as th' unwelcome news
From earth arriv'd at heaven-gate, displeas'd
All were who heard. Milton's Par. Lost, b. x.
Though he that brings unwelcome news
Has but a losing office, yet he that shews
Your danger first, and then your way to safety,
May heal that wound he made. Denham's Sophy.
Forc'd from her presence, and condemn'd to live;
Unwelcome freedom, and unthank'd reprieve. Dryden.
From the very first instances of perception, some things are grateful, and others unwelcome to them; some things that they incline to, and others that they fly. Locke.
Such hasty nights as these, would give very unwelcome interruptions to our labours. Bentley's Sermons.
UNWELT. adj. Not lamented; not bemoaned.
Our fatherless distress was left unmoan'd;
Your widow dolours likewise be unwept. Shakespeare. Rich. III.
We, but the slaves that mount you to the throne:
A base, ignoble crowd, without a name;
Unwept, unworthy of the funeral flame;
By duty bound to forfeit each his life. Dryden.
UNWET. adj. Not moist.
Once I meant to meet
My fate with face unmov'd, and eyes unwept;
Yet since I have thee here in narrow room,
My tears shall set thee first adrift within thy tomb. Dryden.
UNWHIPPED. adj. Not punished; not corrected with the rod.
Tremble, thou wretch,
That hast within thee undivulged crimes,
Unwhipped of justice. Shakespeare. K. Lear.
Once I caught him in a lie;
And then, unwhipped, he had the grace to cry. Pope.
UNWHOLESOME. adj.
1. Infalubrious; mischievous to health.
The discovery of the disposition of the air, is good for the prognosticks of wholesome and unwholesome years. Bacon.
There I a prisoner chain'd, scarce freely draw
The air imprison'd also, close and damp,
Unwholesome draught; but here I find amends,
The breath of heav'n fresh-blowing, pure and sweet,
With day-spring born; here leave me to respire. Milton.
How can any one be assured, that his meat and drink are not poisoned, and made unwholesome before they are brought to him? South.
Rome is never fuller of nobility than in summer; for the country towns are so infested with unwholesome vapours, that they dare not trust themselves in them; while the heats last. Milford on Italy.
Children born healthy, often contract diseases from an unwholesome nurse. Archbishop of Dord.
2. Corrupt; tainted.
We'll use this unwholesome humidity; this gross, watery pumpion: we'll teach him to know turtles from pails. Shakespeare.
UNWIELDY. adv. Heavily; with difficult motion.
Unwieldily they wallow first in ooze;
Then in the shady covert seek repose. Dryden.
UNWIELDINESS. n. f. Heaviness; difficulty to move; or be moved.
To what a cumbersome unweildiness,
And burdensome corpulence my love had grown,
But that I made it feed upon
That which love worst endures, discretion. Donne.
The supposed unweildiness of its massy bulk, grounded upon our experience of the inaptitude of great and heavy bodies to motion, is a mere imposture of our senses. Glanville.
UNWIELDY. adj. Unmanageable; not easily moving or moved; bulky; weighty; ponderous.
An ague, meeting many humours in a fat, unweildy body of fifty-eight years old, in four or five fits, carried him out of the world. Clarendon.
Part, huge of bulk!
Wallowing unweildy, enormous in their gait,
Tempest the ocean. Milton's Par. Lost, b. vii.
Unweildy fims of wealth, which higher mount,
Than files of martial'd figures can account. Dryden.
Nothing here th' unweildy rock avails,
Reboulding harmless from the platted scales;
That, firmly join'd, preserv'd him from a wound,
With native armour crusted all around. Addison's Ovid.
What carriage can bear away all the rude and unweildy lop-pings of a branchy tree at once? Watts's Impr. of the Mind.
UNWILLING. adj. Loath; not contented; not inclined; not complying by inclination.
The nature of man is unwilling to continue doing that wherein it shall always condemn itself. Hooker, b. v.
If thou dost find him tractable,
Encourage him, and tell him all our reasons;
If he be leaden, icy, cold, unwilling,
Be thou so too. Shakespeare's Rich. III.
